obstacles. Additionally, technical glitches or system downtime during peak application periods can hinder smooth submission.

O?ine Application Forms

Paper application forms remain accessible through KMTC campuses and authorized centers. This traditional method bene?ts applicants who prefer tangible forms or lack consistent internet access. O?ine applications are particularly vital for candidates in underserved regions.

The downside includes manual data entry errors by administrative sta?, longer processing durations, and the risk of physical forms being lost or damaged. Furthermore, applicants must personally deliver these forms or use postal services, which may delay receipt.
